GRAYLING, MICHIGAN, MARCH 16, 1922

NUMBER 11

INDEPENDENTS 24 TRIANGLES 14

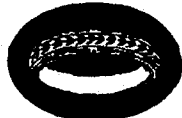

LOCALS TOO FAST FOR VISITING QUINTETTE.

The coming of the Saginaw Triangles to play the local Independents was a long looked for event. The locals were defeated by the Triangles upon their first visit by two points and Grayling intended to even the game at this time. Thompson was absent at the first game and our team had lost heart before the game began, so as may be expected, they lost a game that they should have won.

However they more than got even in the game last Saturday night. Grayling had a crippled lineup, with Milnes, center out on account of illness and Johnson, forward, out because of blood poisoning in one of his hands. Reynolds played center; Charlefour and Libke, forwards; and Morrow and Thompson, as guards, composed the quintette for Grayling and played the whole game without substitution.

The game had hardly started before it was plainly evident to the visitors that they had the biggest job on their hands that they had encountered this season. The ball was in Grayling territory most of the time. In spite of this the Triangles managed to slip over a pair of baskets before Grayling scored. Soon after, however the team work and passing of the Independents began to show its effectiveness and scores began to pile up. Every man on Grayling's lineup played a star game and to their great credit and satisfaction to the home people, soon had the visiting quintette humbled and playing on the defensive.

On the visiting team was Waldemar Roeser, a former Grayling boy and a member of our famous high school teams of previous years. He played guard for the Triangles and played a masterful game but he and his team mates were up before a most worthy opponent and had to submit to a decisive defeat. On a couple of occasions Roeser looked horns with his former team mate, Grant Thompson.

son and appeared to try and show him up but the former had apparently reckoned with poor judgment and each time Thompson came out the winner.

The Triangles played a great game and showed some brilliant efforts but were nearly always intercepted and defeated in their efforts. Grayling's wonderful system and clever passing had the visitors guessing most of the time, and resulted in a one-sided score in their favor.
The score in the first half was Grayling 15; Triangles 6. Final score, Grayling 34; Triangles 14. Following is a summary of the game:

SUPERVISORS ARE IN SESSION.

A meeting of the county board of Supervisors convened at the Court house Wednesday afternoon. All members are present. At this time the board will endeavor to close up all business affairs of the county and be ready to turn them over to the new board that will come in April.
Few changes are expected on the next board. All the old members have been re-nominated by their respective parties except Oliver B. Scott of South Branch. It will depend upon the people at home whether or not the old supervisors will be returned or not.

Charles Craven of Frederic has no opposition and no doubt will be re-elected. He has served many years in the capacity of supervisor for his township and the many years that he has been returned would indicate that his constituents are well satisfied with his service. It is quite the same with Mr. Kellogg of Lovells. He also has served his township as supervisor many terms, and has no opposition this year and no doubt will be returned.

Melvin A. Bates is reputed to be the best posted on county affairs of any man in the county. He has exceptional ability and an indefatigable in his service for which he is elected. He will be opposed in the election by Walmer Jorgenson.

Hans Christenson of Beaver Creek is just finishing his first term as supervisor. He is well esteemed on the board by his fellow members. He will be opposed by Abbey Ellis, republican.
James F. Knibbs of Maple Forest has no opposition in the election. He too has served his township often and well. He is ambitious and earnest in his work and deserves and earned the confidence of his people who seem pleased to continue him in this important office.
For the past year the present members have met in board sessions and, as usual, many warm friendships were formed. They say that they intend to have a good time this session besides work, for it cannot be expected that they will ever all be together in session again. They told this in confidence to Ye Editor and said not to write them up too fully, just overlook some things. Of course we agreed but it seems that if they were not such tight wads that they might invite a fellow to join in some of their parties. Gee! The bunch had the nerve to tell of the big banquets and social times they were going to have this session and then never even said, have a cigar. If they weren't such good fellows we might hope every one of them might be defeated.

To most men experience is like a stern light of a ship, which illumines only the track it has passed.—Coleridge.

ROY MILNES WITHDRAWS NOMINATION FOR CLERK.

Grayling, Mich. March 15, 1922.
Mr. O. P. Schumann,
Editor, Crawford Avalanche.
Dear Mr. Schumann: It appears there is some misunderstanding regarding my nomination for the office of Township Clerk at the Republican Caucus, as same was made without my knowledge and consent. Possibly the party who placed my name in nomination may have understood that I had consented to such an arrangement, but I assure you such was not the case.
As I have no desire whatever to have my name on the ballot as a candidate, am taking this means of notifying the public. Thanking you for this courtesy, I am Yours very truly,
R. O. Milnes.

AN EXPLOSION OF PEDIGREED TRUTH.

(Notes of the Grayling Schools.)

The Senior credits were mailed to parents this week. This will show the parents how the students stand.

A new supply of reference will adorn the shelves of the library very soon.

Burroughs Adding Machine Co. has loaned an adding machine to the school for a period of six weeks. The students hope it will remain after the time is up.

The 12th grade Civics class enjoyed a trip through the capitol of Washington, studying the different buildings in regards to architecture etc. This was done by means of photography.

Mr. B. E. Smith gave a short lecture to a number of the faculty and parents of the pupils Monday evening on the advantage of teaching by observation. Many pupils will remember things better by observation than by verbal method.

The tardy marks in the High School are one third less this month showing a slow improvement. Let's make a "big" improvement next month.

We have three new pupils in the High School, Russell and Ruth Johnson of East Jordan and Elmer Fenton. Two pupils have left, Edith Neilson and Edson Bates.

Who were the Amazons? Watch for further information.
An Orthography test was given in the 7th A class and it resulted in 16 A's out of 25 in the class.

A Coach Morrow's Hoboes invaded the shore-line and carried away two more victories, the girls team losing both games. The Grayling teams played Oscoda first. The girls lost a closely contested game by a score of 17 to 15.

Boys won by a score of 31-19. The Oscoda team outweighed the Hoboes by a big margin, but the Hoboes outplayed them in team work and were far superior to them in basket tossing. The score at the end of the first half was 20-8 favoring the Hoboes. The second half the Oscodas was unable to penetrate the defense of the Hoboes. They only scored 3 field baskets and one from near the center of the floor. The other points were made by free-throws. Considerable roughness was used during the game.

The next night the two teams played Tawas City. The girls losing by a bad score and the boys winning by a score of 42 to 11. First half in boys game ended in a score of 15-8 in favor of the Hoboes. Tawas City made a good showing in the first half but when the second half started they were unable to bring the ball past the center of the floor. They made only three points, and those from free throws. The Hoboes showed good team work and had a good eye for the baskets scoring 27 points during the last half.

A signet ring containing three initials has been found in the Fifth grade room, and owner may have same by calling, and describing it. Some money has also been found.
There were 23 cases of tardiness for February, making a total of 92 cases for the year to date in the 6th grade. This is pretty bad and something should be done about it.

Stimulant.

Miss Johnson in Physiology. "What is the gastric juice?"
Lloyd Simpson "The gastric juice is a watery fluid."
Miss Estabrook: "What is the Latin name?"

Alvina Larson: "It's a race between a Latin pony and the teacher's goat."
English teacher: "What is the greatest thing in life?"
Math. Student: "An Algebra book with answers."

Miss Fuller: "I thought you would keep a secret?"
Miss Woodward: "Well, I kept it for a week. Do you think I am a storage plant?"

Miss Fuller in Physics class: "Now that you have heard of the inventions that Mr. Edison is now working on, you can tell me what great problem is involved in an apparatus for communicating with the dead."
Archie Cripps: "Getting wire which will resist heat."

WOMANS CLUB ENTERTAINS GOODFELLOWSHIP CLUB.

The home of Mrs. Robert Robin was attractively decorated in St. Patrick's green on Monday evening the occasion being a St. Patrick's party given by the Woman's club in honor of the Goodfellowship club. The following musical program, every number of which was keenly enjoyed, was given:
Ladies Quartette, Barcarolle—Tales of Hoffman.

If you don't love your job don't worry about it a single minute. Some other fellow will soon have it.—Sheldon.

THE VILLAGE ELECTS OFFICERS

MRS. KRAUS, NOMINEE FOR TRUSTEE DEFEATED BY M. A. ATKINSON.

An unusually large vote was registered last Monday in the village election. With but one ticket in the field the average voter considers it a waste of time to go to the polls on election day. The regular ticket as nominated at the village caucus was elected except Mrs. Daisy Kraus, for trustee, who was defeated by Marshall A. Atkinson, who ran on slips. The total number of votes cast was 125, of which Mrs. Kraus received 47 and Mr. Atkinson 62. The remainder of the ticket was elected and is as follows:

President—Dr. Charles A. Canfield.
Clerk—Chris Jensen.
Treasurer—Holger Hanson.
Assessor—Walmer Jorgenson.
Trustees—Jos. C. Burton, Mrs. Eva Reagan and Marshall A. Atkinson.

BAND CONCERT FRIDAY NIGHT

Grayling Citizens band will give a concert at the school gymnasium Friday night, and a cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend. There will be no charge for the concert. The band has been practicing diligently in preparation for this event and a fine program has been prepared.

After the regular musical program there will be a St. Patrick dance at the same place. A charge of 75c per couple will be made for the dance. To this also a cordial invitation is extended to attend.

GRAYLING TO HAVE AUTOMOBILE CLUB.

Next Meeting Tuesday, March 21.

A meeting was held in the Board of Trade rooms Tuesday night for the purpose of considering the idea of organizing a local automobile club. There was a good attendance, present and many good reasons for having such an organization were suggested. A temporary organization was formed with George Burke, president, and Tony Nelson, secretary. Copies of by laws of other similar clubs have been requested and it is expected that these will be here in a few days.

A meeting has been called for Tuesday evening, March 21, at the Board of Trade rooms, when it is hoped that every automobile owner in the county will be on hand. Come and bring your neighbors.

Farm Bureau Notes

County Agricultural Agent

Deadlock Broken.

We are happy to say that we are moving forward.

Wednesday I had the pleasure of seeing a splendid registered Holstein bull calf arrive from Mt. Pleasant for Andrew Mortenson.

Saturday, one for George Annis, from Saginaw, a beauty, too. Its sire cost $3000 when a calf.

A. B. Failing, well appreciating the value of improved stock, has purchased the Adam Gierke bull calf, which helps just as if shipped in.

These farmers have certainly made a long step in the right direction. Their free subscription to Hoard's Dairyman will begin at once.

Who will be next?

Bargains.

The farmer who is prompt and takes that two-year old bred Holstein heifer, tested for tuberculosis, for $100 certainly gets a bargain.

So do those who take that October heifer at $40, and that September bull at $40. Both registered purebreds out of herd tested for tuberculosis. Borrow the money and buy them.

More Good News This Morning.

Have just received word from Vassar of nine bull bargains that can be had for cash, Liberty bonds, or note at 7 per cent.

All these bulls are in splendid condition. Part are from advanced registry dams, and part from daughters of advanced registry dams.

Four are one to two months old at $75 each.
Two are three months old at $100 each.
Two are one year old at $125 each.
One is two years old at $150.

(Later Telegram just received states that the 2-yr. old is just sold.)

Cow Aristocracy.

From Saginaw comes chance to get a bull calf, four months old, whose mother sold for $415, and is milking now 80 pounds a day and is one of the finest cows in the owner's barn. This mother tested 27.07 pounds of butter and 658.4 pounds of milk in 7 days.

The sire of this bull calf is a 33 pound bull.
This calf is worth $300. That price is often paid for such high breeding.

Some enterprising farmer here can get it for $150, by paying $50 down and giving a nine-months note for the rest at 6 per cent. Isn't there some one among us who will make a start?

Lean on Yourself.

Don't think you will buy your good cows of some other farmer in the county. He hasn't any; or, if he has, he will keep them.

High-producing cows should be the market for feeds we raise.
We Crawford County farmers will (Continued on last page.)

Owosso—Whether or not joint use of a driveway for 30 years by neighbors makes a permanent joint driveway is put up to the circuit court by the filing of a suit by Mrs. Anna Oehlmeier, of this city, against John and Ellen Depotky, also of Owosso. Minden City—Mrs. William Oswald is dead and her husband is in a serious condition in the Harbor Beach hospital, as a result of an explosion caused by kerosene poured on the kitchen fire by Mrs. Oswald. The blast broke windows and set the building afire. The husband, who was outside, attempted to extinguish the flames, which enveloped his wife, and his own clothing was ignited. A daughter, brought bed clothing, with which she smothered her parents' burning clothing. With the help of her brother and neighbors, she saved the house.

MINERS READY TO MEET OPERATORS

LONG BATTLE ON COAL WAGE CERTAIN UNLESS U. S. INTERFERES

LEWIS SAYS OPERATORS 'LAG'

President of Union Declares Government Pressure May Be Necessary to Bring Them to Time.

Indianapolis—Hope of averting a nation-wide strike of soft coal miners April 1 rests with the coal operators of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois accepting the appeal of Secretary of Labor Davis for a wage conference of operators and miners, according to the statement here of President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America.

The union, Lewis declared, is ready to meet operators of the four states, which comprise the central competitive field, at "any time and place."

Declaring operators were "morally bound" to meet miners in conference, Lewis added: "Up to this time we have failed to bring the operators into a conference and the only thing we can hope for now is that the government at Washington may bring sufficient pressure to bear on these operators to compel them to meet us as they agreed they would do."

Semi-official returns of the strike vote now being cast by the miners continued to be reported by district union officials arriving here for conferences with the international executive board. These reports, it was said, authoritatively, forecast nine-tenths of the miners in favor of the walkout unless an agreement is reached.

$400,000 BOOZE CARGO SEIZED

Captain Tells Court He Thought Ship Carried Cocanuts.

New York—The American schooner Victor, loaded with more than 3,000 cases of American and Scotch whisky, whose value was estimated by prohibition agents at nearly $400,000, was seized by customs inspectors in the lower bay and tied up at the Battery, pending court action.

James Brown, of Brooklyn, captain of the schooner, and several members of the crew were taken to the customs house for questioning. Customs authorities were informed by the captain, they said, that Charles Kelly, owner of the craft, had ordered him to the Bahama islands several weeks ago.

One night while he was asleep, the captain is reported to have said, the cargo, wrapped in burlap, was placed on board. The captain thought it consisted of coconuts.

SAYS NELL WAIN BANKS TO REFUSE BONUS LOANS

COMPTROLLER H. R. CRISSINGER

Washington—Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger in an interview has pointed out that adjusted service certificates such as now being considered by congress, would not be eligible for rediscount by federal reserve banks.

Mr. Crissinger said that he would advise all national banks to refuse to accept the certificates as collateral as they would constitute the worst kind of frozen credits.

House leaders who are sponsors for the plan dispute the treasury official's contention and in the meantime are going forward with the measure.

SAYS SALOME WAS ACROBAT

Idea of Naughty Dancer All False, Historian Declares.

London—Salome was an acrobatic tumbler—not a dancer of the modern ballet type, according to evidence laid before the royal archaeological institute by George C. Bruce, of Oxford.

If his evidence is corroborated, theologians, historians and others have long labored under a misapprehension as to Salome's first claim to fame.

All the old illuminated parchments and carvings show her posing as an acrobat and not as a dancer, Mr. Bruce declares.

Seattle—In Zululand a man pays six cows for a wife and she is so expensive a luxury that the husband is loath to lose her. This, the Rev. F. G. "Here a man can buy a marriage license for a dollar and, and if he wants to lose his wife he can do it with comparatively small pecuniary loss," he said. "In Zululand, six cows is a big price."

True Detective Stories THE DOUBLE CRIME

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

IT WAS in the late summer of 1903 that the New York police discovered the body of a man, evidently an Italian, concealed in a barrel on the East side. Every mark that could possibly supply a clue to his identification had been removed—even the labels had been clipped from his clothes—and the manner in which his face had been mutilated rendered him totally unrecognizable.

But, just as the case was about to be entered upon the book of New York's unsolved mysteries, it was cleared up through a coincidence so startling that no writer of detective fiction would have dared make use of it.

On the night of the murder, William J. Flynn, then chief of the Eastern division of the United States secret service, with headquarters in New York, was working on one of the numerous counterfeiting cases which occur so frequently in the Italian section of the metropolis.

Flynn himself was elected to trail a pair of Italians whom he had reason to believe were working for or with the counterfeiter. The trail led to an Italian grocery, where, from the shadow of a doorway across the street, the government detective could see into a lighted room in the suspected house. A few moments later a covered wagon drew up in front of the house, a man got out, entered the grocery, and made his way into the very room that Flynn was watching.

The light from the lamp fell directly upon his face, and the secret service operative realized that this must be a new addition to the gang, for he was certainly no one that he had seen before. Then the curtains to the window were drawn, and Flynn abandoned his chase for the time being.

The next morning the murdered man was discovered, nearly half a mile from the place where Flynn had hidden himself the night before. It was several days later that the operative read the official account of the crime and noted that the body had been found in a sugar barrel, partly filled with blood-stained sawdust. The date of the murder, coupled with the operative's mind the fact that he had been watching an Italian grocery at or about the time that the foreigner had been killed. Merely to satisfy himself that there was no connection between the counterfeiter and the murdered man, Flynn went to the morgue and examined the body. The peculiar shape of the forehead, the manner in which the hair splayed out above the prominent ears and the blood-stained green hat which had been found in the barrel, told the story beyond the shadow of a doubt. It was the stranger whom Flynn had seen entering the store which he had been watching!

Feeling certain that here was a sign which pointed toward the operations of the gang which he was after, Flynn had the body photographed from a number of angles, while experts in physiognomy reconstructed the features to something approaching a lifelike appearance. Then, armed with these post-mortem pictures, Flynn took a trip to Ossining to see if any of the members of the Italian colony in Sing Sing could identify the dead man.

The idea proved to be a good one, for a convict whom Flynn knew—an Italian serving time for another counterfeiting case—identified the photographs as being those of his brother-in-law, Mariuca Benedetto, whom he described as being a peaceful hard-working citizen who had never been implicated in any of the crimes of the Italian settlement.

Working backward from this clue, Flynn and the other secret service operatives trailed the Italians whom the chief had seen in the grocery store on the night of the murder, and it was not long before they had made a complete roundup of the gang. As was to be expected in a game of this nature, things were doubtful, but, as was usual, there were none too well supported by fact, and it was a comparatively simple matter for the police to get at the bottom of the case, once the identity of the victim had been established.

A judicious application of the "third degree" brought to light the fact that Benedetto had been killed because he had gotten wind of the counterfeiting plot, and because he was the brother-in-law of the man who later identified the body—a man who had incurred the undying enmity of his compatriots by turning state's evidence. The inflexible laws of the society to which they both belonged—one of the societies which ruler Little Italy with a rule of iron and a hand of blood—demanded the sacrifice of the next of kin in the event of information being given to the police.

But, if Flynn had not happened to be watching the grocery store the night of the murder, the chances are that the crime would still be unsolved. The leader of the murder gang was found to be Ignazio Lupo, one of the very men Flynn was after, but the government allowed the counterfeiting charge to hang fire until the expiration of Lupo's term for manslaughter. Another Lupo, brother to Ignazio, escaped at the time, and was not captured until ten years later, although Flynn and his associates were on the lookout for him all that time.

Learn Truth About Star.

Some time ago it was reported by a distinguished astronomer that the star called Xi Gemina, which has long been known as a variable, is in reality double, but its two components are so close that no telescope is able to separate them and their existence is proved by the shifting lines in the spectrum. The variations in brightness, it is thought, can only be due to the attraction between the two stars, raising immense tides in their molten or vaporous globes which displace the spectral lines.

Voliva Says the World Is Flat

Wilbur Glenn Voliva, leader of the religious sect with headquarters at Zion City, Ill., says the earth is flat and that shortly he will prove it by taking a ship and sailing around the outer crust of the earth. Voliva proposes to captain a ship called the "Zion" and will start on a point at the sixty-fifth meridian and keep going to the starting point. He says the earth is flat as a pancake and the point we call the North Pole is the center of the earth and there is no South Pole, and that the sixty-fifth meridian is near the rim of the earth. The photograph shows Voliva (seated) explaining the map to his personal attendant in his office at Zion City.

Quebec Names.

In the province of Quebec there is much uncertainty in the spelling and the use of names. A scattered people in a huge half-wild country, unlettered for the most part and with no one to turn to for counsel... is apt to pay attention only to the sound of names, caring nothing about their appearance when written or the sex to which they pertain. Pronunciation has naturally varied in one mouth or another, in this family or that, and when a formal occasion calls for writing, each takes leave to spell his baptismal name in his own way, without a passing thought that there may be a canonical form.

Borrowing from other languages has added to the uncertainty of orthography and gender. Individuals speak indifferently, Denise, Denjole or Denjole; Conrad or Conrade; men bear such names as Hermenegilde, Aglae, Edwige—Louis Hemon, in "Marie Champlevine."

Sport for the Clerks.

Soup chips in an Emporia (Kan.) grocery store looked so much like brown sugar several people stopped and put a handful in their mouths. The more they expectorated the worse the latter got, and the store clerks who naturally dislike people who lunch off the store had a day of real sport.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

LEGION'S GENUINE 'CAVE MAN'

Parlee Gross, Buckeye Soldier, Specializes on Underground Exploration—Says "It's the Life."

Remarkably few newly married couples ever think of settling down in a little cave in the Ozark mountains. And yet Parlee C. Gross of McComb, O., says that caves are much warmer than apartments and farmhouses. They are also much cheaper.

When Gross, who is a magazine writer connected with the See-American-First movement, returned to McComb from an exploration of the celebrated Ha Ha Tonka region in the Ozarks, he didn't understand why his American Legion post hadn't picked out a nice ripe cave for its quarters. He said cave life was the only life. He has become not only a cave admirer, but a cave connoisseur as well, and in appreciation of his exploration achievements, officials have named an interesting geological formation which he discovered "Gross's Giant Gnome."

The American Legion at McComb is proud of its genuine "cave man"—particularly proud of the fact that he has been selected as one of the members of a party to penetrate the unknown regions of Wyandotte Cave of Indiana and the Great Onyx Cave of Kentucky.

DENVER LEGION BOOSTS HER

Miss Edith Adams, Beautiful Actress, as Genuine as the Centennial State's Mountains.

Members of the American Legion in Denver testify that all the ex-soldier talent this side of the Rockies does not compare with a good-looking girl, when it comes to putting on a show. They are gradually coming to this conclusion, being some few years behind Broadway managers, who discovered the secret several summers ago by reading old Egyptian and Syrian manuscripts.

Legionnaires in Denver didn't breathe any of this to Miss Edith Adams when they asked her to join their show, because, after all, they don't like to admit it except in plenary session, with newspaper men excluded. But the rumor is that Miss Adams knew it anyway.

The particular thing about Miss Adams which her Legion friends are proud of is that she doesn't "slap." The fables of the eastern debutante fail to interest them (or their audience) when they can find an amateur actress "as genuine as their own Colorado mountains."

USED THE GOLD BRICK CURE

"Treatment" Ended Many Cases of Flat Feet, Semi-Blindness and Other "Defects."

A gold brick which made the lame to walk and the blind to see is told of by Capt. P. H. McCarthy, Development Battalion No. 1, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., who gets the credit for introducing the term "gold brick" into the army during the war. The unwillingness of certain recruits to submit to "development" brought the brick into play.

Innumerable cases of flat feet, semi-blindness, and other ailments were continually reported by reluctant soldiers at the camp. It was up to Captain McCarthy to discover whether these were ailments or alibis. When the medical profession failed, the brick got in its work. The soldier would be handed the gold article and told to go about as he pleased. Few from drill, hikes, labor of any kind, but he must carry the brick. When he saw an officer he must hold the brick out with the left hand and salute with the right.

The sick man was invariably back drilling with his outfit the second day. Flat feet and cold ones alike were cured.

Each Sees Himself in "Movies."

Marshal Foch sat comfortably in Paris the other evening and saw films of his 16,000-mile tour through the United States. The "movie" was part of the entertainment which the Paris post of the American Legion had arranged for the marshal. Ambassador Myron T. Herrick said, in introducing Foch: "If it had been possible for Germany in 1914 to have seen a picture so truly representing the life between France and America, the war would never have been."

LEGION LIKED "MAC'S" NERVE

Veteran of the U. S. Navy Is Chosen as One of the Organization's National Heads.

John Alexander McCormack, vice-commander of the American Legion, liked the looks of the navy as far back as 1901. He still thinks it is a good organization, although in recent years he has transferred his over-loyalty to the Navy. Tuberculosis hospital at Fort Lyon, Colo.

Mr. McCormack joined the navy when he was sixteen years old. In 1905 he was transferred from apprentice seaman to hospital apprentice, and the following year was one of those who administered aid to the survivors of the famous turret explosion on board the U. S. S. Kearsarge, on Good Friday afternoon. He quit the navy in 1908, but heard the voice of the sea again in 1915. Within a year he was helping capture Vera Cruz with the landing party that went ashore from the Atlantic fleet.

Before 1917 had ended he had established a hospital at St. Angelo's, and Naval Hospital No. 1 at Bristol. One of the things he does not mention about his career is the outbreak of a fire at Bristol, during which he carried out several helpless patients and nearly ruined a couple of serviceable hands. During the Marine offensive he was on an operating team at Jullif.

The Legion thought so much of his spirit and capabilities that they elected him one of their national heads.

WARM FRIEND OF THE LEGION

John Lambros of St. Paul Is Ever Ready to Feed the Hungry Ex-Serviceman.

Whenever an ex-serviceman holding one hand on his stomach applies at the American Legion in St. Paul, Minn., the Legion asks: "Why don't you go to see John?"

"John" is John C. Lambros, a restaurant proprietor whose hobby is satisfying the cravings of worthy ex-soldiers who are looking around for a job. At a recent celebration at the St. Paul armory he tackled a big contract and fed 600 men at cost—and it didn't cost very much at that.

Although Lambros was born in Soderstrom, Greece, nobody minds because nobody can pronounce it. And everybody swears that he is more of an American than many citizens of native birth. He has been in this country for 13 years, during which time he has developed this great passion for seeing that people do not go hungry in St. Paul, and become a warm friend and helper to the American Legion.

"LITTLE CHIEF SHALL LEAD"

National Commander MacNider Offers Clever Fling at Editorial Comment on His Youthfulness.

Being referred to as a "child" is all right if one knows the trick of turning the phrase. The New York Times, in an editorial, referred to the youthfulness of Hamford MacNider, commander of the American Legion. In the next speech MacNider made, he said:

"You remember the story of the shaly young second lieutenant who was suddenly called upon to take command of a hard-battled company. As he stepped to the front, some private in the rear rank muttered: 'And a little child shall lead them.' The officer commanded the man who made the remark to take two paces forward—and the whole company stepped up."

"He dismissed them and ten minutes later the following bulletin was posted on the company's board: 'This company will assemble at 3 p. m. in heavy marching order for a twenty-mile hike. And a little child shall lead them—on a d—n big horse.'"

Carrying On With the American Legion

A complete edition of a Berkeley, Cal., daily newspaper, will be prepared by the local post of the American Legion.

Alien soldiers and sailors are still taking out citizen's papers at the rate of about 700 a month, the department of labor reports.

Overlooking Kilauea's crater, ex-servicemen are enjoying a private health resort established by citizens of Hilo, Hawaii.

Arrested for vagrancy while attempting to find work, three ex-soldiers were released from jail in Tulsa, Okla., at the request of the American Legion.

Refusing citizenship to two foreign-born "conscientious objectors," a Toledo judge was commended by the Tony Wroblewski post of the Legion, composed entirely of foreign-born Americans.

Where centuries ago was reared the capital of the Cherokee nation will soon be built an American Legion clubhouse, at Tahlequah, Okla.

Men who served in the Coast Guard are entitled to hospitalization in public health service hospitals, according to a ruling given the American Legion.

The Seventh Regiment, N. Y. N. G., oldest unit of State militia in the United States, entertained several hundred wounded veterans with an evening of music.

GAVE HIS NAME TO CALENDAR

Of all the long list of popes, Gregory XIII has probably left the most lasting monument, for he framed the calendar we use today, and it still bears his name. Gregory completed his calendar in 1582.

In more modern times a pope of outstanding personality was Pius IX, who in 1846 broke the age-old tradition that the pope should never preach a sermon. It happened in this way. A famous preacher of the time, Padre Ventura, whose eloquence attracted great crowds, had arranged to preach at a church in Rome, but at the last moment he was taken ill and the disappointed people were about to disperse when suddenly the bells rang and it was announced that the sovereign pontiff had arrived in the church. The pope entered the pulpit and preached a sermon which the historian of the time has described as a "simple, good, plain sermon, easily intelligible to all." It was the first time a pope had preached for 200 years.

Eskimos Slaughter Musk Ox.

The Eskimo hunts the musk ox, with dogs from which they do not flee. On sighting a small band he lets one or two dogs loose when the other animals immediately form a circle in defensive formation with calves in the center, and prepare to give fight. As soon as the herd is thus "anchored" the Eskimo lets all his dogs loose and then proceeds to kill the musk ox with gun or bow and arrow. The musk ox are very fierce, and if a wounded bull charges the Eskimo, which gives the hunter a chance to shoot a second time. In this way the Eskimo is able to dispatch the whole herd.

Mohammed in Court.

It was in a court of law, and a witness was being cross-examined.

Said Counsel—Why do you assert that the plaintiff is insane?

Witness—Because he goes about declaring he is the prophet Mohammed.

Counsel—And do you consider that clear proof of his insanity?

Witness—I do.

Counsel—Why?

"Because," answered the witness, with a complacent smile, "I am the prophet Mohammed myself."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Youngstown, Ohio.—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt me and I could hardly do my little bit of housework. I was played out when I would just sweep one room and would have to rest. I would have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and night I could not sleep unless I had something under my back. I had awful cramps every month and was just nearly all in. Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I am willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and a second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Surely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I cannot express to you how I feel, the way I would like to. If you can use this letter you are welcome to it and if any woman does not believe what I have written to be true, she can write to me and I will describe my condition to her as I have to you."—Mrs. ELMER HEASLEY, 141 S. Prehistoric Ruins.

The fascinating interest of the prehistoric ruins in Rhodesia, South Africa, drew the attention of the archaeologists of the British association during its recent meetings at Cape Town. Among those ruins the most conspicuous is the great Zimbabwe temple, which lies about 200 miles inland from the Indian ocean. The oldest of the ruined buildings are believed to date back at least to the days of King Solomon. It is thought that they were constructed by Semitic colonists, whose chief object was gold mining, and who have left indications of their worship of Baal and Ashtaroth, as described in the Bible. Experts believe that precious metals to the value of $2,000,000 or $3,000,000 must have been extracted from the gold reefs of Rhodesia in ancient times.

WABBLING ON THE BONUS.

There is a conspicuous lack of starch in the Congressional support of the soldiers' bonus. In fact the ghost that jumps out from dark corners on black nights and scares certain Congressmen out of their boots.
President Harding insists that the only way to "get the money" for the bonus is by reenacting the sales taxes. Congressmen have lived through the sales tax period, and most of them seem to think that that county would have to be chloroformed to stand for it again.

The American Legion is pressing its campaign for the bonus, and Commander MacNider is insistent on speedy action. Congress is pretty well divided between those who believe in the bonus and want to pass it, and those who do not believe in it and want it killed. Class three is likewise numerous, and it consists of Congressmen whose districts are close and who are willing to do the "popular thing" on the soldiers' bonus, or any other "old thing" that will make them votes.

The President insists that if Congress passes the bonus bill that it must provide the money to pay for it. So far, every proposal to raise this money has met with stern disapproval from the White House. Congress is like the man who mortgaged his house and land, his crops and household furniture, and then was prevented from placing his wife and children in escrow. "That is the fix we are in," Congress is telling the ex-service men. To which the Legion replies: "You are talking bunk. If Congress wanted to have a billion to fight with, the money would be raised in a week. You can do the same thing in this bonus matter." Strange differences of opinion like this are not unusual in Washington!

ALL WORN OUT.

Does morning find you with a lame, stiff and aching back? Are you tired all the time—find work a burden?
Have you suspected your kidneys?
Grayling people endorse Doan's Kidney Pills. Ask your neighbor.

Harry Ward, Grayling, says:

"Mornings my back was in bad shape.
It was lame and sore and many times catches pains jerked me back.
Work which required stooping came hard for me; every time I went to straighten sharp pains darted over my back. I was restless during the night and couldn't get much sleep.
Black specks floated before my eyes and brought on headaches. My kidneys were so weak I had to get up often at night and the secretions were painful and highly colored. I was in a nervous condition. In fact,
I was all worn out when a friend advised me to use Doan's Kidney Pills.
I purchased a few boxes at Lewis' Drug Store and they cured me up in great shape."

SCHOOL TEAMS WIN FROM WEST BRANCH

CLOSE SEASON, AT HOME WITH TWO VICTORIES.

Those who attended the basket ball games between the boys and girls high school teams of Grayling and similar teams from West Branch were given a real treat Wednesday night.
Both games were fast and exciting, altho the scores were very much one-sided. Both Grayling teams lost at West Branch a couple of weeks ago, and the visitors came here confident of victory. There was a good crowd of West Branch that accompanied their team to Grayling, only to see their favorites given decisive defeat.

Girls Game.
The line-up on the Grayling team was as follows: Ruth Taylor and Alvina Larson, forwards; Kristine Sal-ling and Lucinda Colten, centers; Vella Hermann and Beulah Colten, guards.
The teams seemed well matched in appearance but the training and coaching of the Grayling girls soon told in the game and they were easy victors.
Score, 1st half—Grayling 10; West Branch 8. Final, Grayling 22; West Branch 11. Referee—Fred Alexander.

Boys Game.
West Branch started the scoring in the first half with a field basket. That was the last point they made in that frame, while Grayling piled up a total of 20 points. In the second half Grayling continued scoring, finishing the game with 48 points, and holding their opponents to a final score of 6 points.
A number of times West Branch got the ball and worked some clever passing, but the fast floor work of Grayling succeeded in breaking up their plays and sending the ball back into Grayling territory. The wonderful work of Midget Brown was one of the features of the boys game. He was in the game every minute and seldom fumbled the ball, and had some excellent shots to his credit. Smith was exceptionally fast in his plays.
Every fellow on the team played a remarkable game and their team work was great. While the visitors had a fine looking team it plainly showed that they lacked coaching. The success of our team is due in a large measure to the excellent coaching of Mr. Morrow.

The line-up on the Grayling boys team was as follows: Brown and Smith, forwards; Landsberg, center;
McPhee and Taylor, guards. Matson was in the game for the last half for Landsberg. Referee—Chamberlin.

Last week our school teams played at Osceola and Tawas City. The boys won both games but the girls lost both games.

This car of refinement and quality is now within the means of those who have considered such a car beyond their hopes

It combines, in addition to the advantages of other fine cars, all of the advantages of the Knight type sleeve-valve motor.

This Willys-Knight motor actually improves—grows more powerful with use—a quality which distinguishes it from all other motors.

It requires no adjustments. It is more flexible—and it always operates quietly.

It is more powerful than any other motor of equal size, and because of this, the Willys-Knight car consumes less gasoline than any other car of equal power and weight.

These important advantages added to the beauty, economy, road comfort and extraordinary long life of the Willys-Knight car explain the enthusiasm of more than 50,000 owners.

Touring reduced $150; now $1375. Roadster reduced $125; now $1350
Coupe reduced $320; now $1875. Sedan reduced $300; now $2095

The Johannesburg train reached that city Tuesday for the first time in a month. During that time the inhabitants of that town had to get along without train service, and only such first class mail as could be sent by sleighs from Grayling. Business was absolutely killed, as no lumber could be shipped. The lumber camps continued their operations and report a fine season for such work; also the lumber mill kept in operation. But outside communication except by phone was almost none. The necessary comforts, thanks to the Company general store, were in abundance, so that nobody suffered. However the isolation is reported to have been very distressing and vexing. One thing, some say, is that they cannot understand why the Railroad company had not sent a train into that town, for a week before the big storms blockaded the roads.

THE GIRL, A HORSE AND A DOG

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons

"IT'S A HOLDUP!"

Synopsis.—Under his grandfather's will, Stanford Broughton, society leader, and his share of the estate, valued at something like $440,000, lies in a "safe repository," latitude and longitude described, and that to all it may be identified by the presence nearby of a brown-haired, blue-eyed girl, a plaid horse, and a dog with a split face, half black and half white. Stanford at first regards the bequest as a joke, but after consideration sets out to find his legacy. On his way to Denver Stanford hears from a fellow traveler, Charles Bullerton, a mining engineer, a story having to do with a flooded mine. He has a "hunch" this mine is the "safe repository" of the will. Bullerton refuses him information. On the station platform at Atropia, just as the train pulls out, Stanford sees what appears to be the identical horse and dog described in his grandfather's will. Impressed, he leaves the train at the next stop, Angela. Unable to secure a conveyance, Broughton seizes a truck-inspection car and escapes, leaving the impression on the town marshal, Beasley, that he is demented. Pursued, he abandons the car, which is wrecked, and escapes on foot. In the darkness he is overtaken by the girl, the horse and the dog. After he explains his presence, she invites him to her home, at the Old Cinnabar mine. Broughton's hosts are Hiram Twombly, caretaker of the mine, and his daughter Jeanie. Stanford does not reveal his identity. Hiram and Stanford go putting around the mine. Stanford gets interested in the work and falls in love with Jeanie, who saves his life. Bullerton shows up at the mine.

"You're not the only pebble on the bench, Bullerton," I said, looking him squarely in the eye. "What you can do with this mine, another mining engineer can do quite as well; and the other man will probably be willing to do it without asking the fenced-in earth for his reward."

"Humph!" he grunted; "so that's your play, is it? Then, after a scowling pause: "You're fighting without armu-million, Broughton. You haven't any money, and you'll look a long time before you'll find an engineer able to finance his own experiment on your drowned proposition."

"That may be," I retorted. "But if you told me the story straight that night in the Pullman, you can't turn a wheel until I tell you to go ahead. So your contract, if you've got one, doesn't amount to a hill of beans."

"That point may make a nice little question for the courts to decide," he answered. "But I don't want to go to law about this thing, and neither do you. As a matter of fact, you haven't any money to throw away in a legal scrap. You make me a deed to fifty-one per cent of the Cinnabar property. Just as it stands, and then you may go back East and enjoy yourself playing roulette, or plink and tose, or red dog—whatever your pet diversion may happen to be. Fifty-one per cent and you give me a clear field—not sick and crocked, I mean. That goes as it lies."

"Fuh!" I scoffed. "A while back you were talking about pulling the law on me. You can't make anything like this stand in the courts and you know it, mighty well."

"Maybe not; but I can make it stand with you—which is much more to the purpose. You said a minute ago that I couldn't turn a wheel without your consent. You can't turn a wheel at all—without money."

"His rubbing the poverty gibe into me made me madder than ever and I caught it was about time to tell him what he got off."

"Then, by Jove, the wheels needn't turn!" I countered. "And that lets you out. If you want to go to law about that contract—well in. That's all I've got to say."

"Oh, hold on!" he protested, with mock concern. "Then he showed me plainly what he'd been doing in the interval between his first and this second appearance in the Red Desert region. "I've had time to look you up, you know. You're engaged to a girl back East and you can't marry her because you haven't money enough. Half a loaf is better than no bread; and I'm offering you very nearly the half loaf. Take it a day or so to think it over. I'm in no hurry." And with that he went back to the cabin across the dump and left me warning the anvil.

I guess it will say itself that the next few days stacked up about as wretched an interval as I had ever been called upon to put over.

Bullerton had a masterful sort of grip that seemed to give him a strange hold upon everything he tackled. At table and in the evenings before the fire he monopolized the talk and the rest of us sat around like stoutheads and let him do it.

It didn't help matters out much when Daddy Hiram, chasing me up on one of the days when I was dodging Bullerton, gave me the sealed envelope which my grandfather had left with him. As will be remembered, it was on the night of Bullerton's arrival at the Cinnabar that I had told Daddy and his daughter who I was, and the subject hadn't been again referred to by any of us. But now Daddy, having overtaken me on one of the trails above the mine, sat beside me on a flat rock and we had it out together.

"You knew who I was from the first, Daddy?" I asked.

"Not right plumb at first, no," he qualified. "You see, I didn't know who I was looking for. Always reckoned somebody'd be along, 'f course, but I hadn't had any idea who 'r when."

"I'm afraid I've been a pretty sorry disappointment to you," I muttered. "I have no money and I don't know enough to be any good at the mining game. And that reminds me: my grandfather paid you a regular salary for the caretaking, didn't he?"

"Uh-huh."

"That has been discontinued since his death?"

"I reckon so."

"I have a little income of my own; not much, but enough for the way we're living here. It must be understood that I share it with you and Jeanie, so long as I stay with you."

"Ain't no need of your doing that, Stannie. I got a little stake hid out for a pinch."

In all this, you will notice, there was no word said about Bullerton. We sat in silence for a while, Daddy chewing a spear of grass. After a time he called attention to the envelope which I still held unopened in my hands.

"Don't ye want to know what your gran'paw says?" he asked mildly.

At this I slit the end of the envelope. Its contents were a deed in fee simple to the Cinnabar and a note to me, written in grandfather Jasper's cramped, old-fashioned handwriting. In the note he merely said that he was leaving me a property which had cost him pretty well up to half a million and that he hoped I'd brace up and go to work and make something out of it, adding that if I hadn't been such a homeless lither all my life he might have considered the propriety of adding an experimental fund to the gift. As it was, I must work out my own salvation—if I were anxious to possess any of that community.

I think it was on the fourth day after his arrival that Bullerton cornered me again and again it was in the deserted blacksmith shop.

"Well, Broughton," he began abruptly, scowling himself once more upon the empty dynamite box. "I've given you plenty of time to think it over. Where do you stand now?"

"Right exactly where I did in the beginning," I snapped. "I don't want any forty-nine-fifty-one per cent partnership with you; neither that nor any other kind."

"All right," he rejoined, brusquely; "we'll call that phase of it a back number and go on to something else. I'll buy your mine, just as it stands, water and all—and that's what nobody else would do, you'd better believe."

"For how much?"

"For fifty thousand dollars—cash."

"No," I grunted. "I don't need a little money that badly."

"Fifty thousand isn't a little; at a good, safe, investment interest it will give you an income of three thousand a year. And that's more than you're getting now out of what your father left you."

"You seem to know a good bit about my private affairs," I growled.

"You said a mouthful, then. I've made it my business to find out about them. There's nothing much to you, Broughton, when you come right down to brass tacks. You had a good education, but you haven't had get-up-and-go enough in you to make any use of it."

"The less you dig in my private garden patch, the better we shall get along," I told him.

He was silent for a moment. He had picked up a bit of iron rod and was tracing hieroglyphic figures with it in the dust of the shop floor. Presently he looked up with a sort of mocking leer.

"Been trying to carry sentimental water on both shoulders, haven't you? I'm telling you right now, Broughton, it's no use. I filed on the little Blue-eyes claim over yonder in Twombly's cabin a long, long time before you ever saw or heard of it."

That remark of his carried things over the edge for me.

"See here, Bullerton," I said, and I suppose I stuck out my jaw at him as people say I do when I'm beginning to feel ugly. "There are limits, and I'll pay you the compliment of assuming that you are not quite a born fool. We are going to leave Miss Twombly out of it; completely and absolutely out of it."

"You may; but I shan't," he grinned back at me. "I point of fact, my dear fellow, now that I come to think of it, you'll have to leave her out."

"Not for anything you may say or do, or leave unaided and undone."

"Yes, you will; and for something that I may say. And I guess this is as good a time as any to mention it."

"Grandfather Jasper was laboring for the good of my soul. He knew his 'medium,' as the artists say. He wanted to make me work—something that nobody else has ever been able to do."

"Don't you like to work?"

"Why-e-e, I guess I'm like other folk in that respect. I don't mind working if I can pick my job—and my company. I've been having a bully good time hammering around this old bunch of junk with your father. Or I was having one until Satan came also."

"Meaning Mr. Bullerton?"

"Quite so; meaning Mr. Bullerton, christened 'Charles.'"

"Ought I to stay here and listen if you're going to say things about him?"

"Not if you are going to marry him, you shouldn't."

"Well, why shouldn't I marry him if I want to? Hasn't he plenty of money? And haven't I told you that I'd marry for money?"

"Humph!" said I; "when you talk that way you are saying out loud just what Lisette says to herself—only you don't mean it and she does. But tell me how did you get permission to come over here and talk with me?"

"Whose permission—Daddy's?"

"No; Bullerton's, of course."

"I don't have to ask it—yet."

"Not yet, but soon," I grinned. "All things come to him—or her—who waits. Just the same, you shouldn't have come. It's cruelty to animals. After a man has traveled thousands of miles to sit at the feet of the one girl in the universe, only to find himself elbowed by a brown-whiskered Jew."

"Hush!" she chided. "Can't you ever be serious? You are not sitting at anybody's feet. What are you going to do about the mine?"

"Bullerton offered to unwater the Cinnabar if I'd deed him a bit more than a half interest—and possibly he'd still be willing to do that, which would mean that he'd form a stock company and freeze me out completely when he got good and ready."

"And what is the other way?"

"He offers to buy the mine outright, just as it stands, for fifty thousand dollars."

"But your grandfather paid nearly half a million for it, didn't he?"

"Even so. But, you see, in the present scrap I'm the under dog. The man you are going to marry has none of the nice little scruples in a business transaction—if you'll permit me to turn that. He even threatens to turn me over to the authorities for stealing that inspection car and getting it smashed."

"Oh, I don't believe he'd do that!" she deprecated.

"It is perfectly right and proper that you shouldn't think so—in the circumstances. Just the same, I'll pardon me if I say that I'm swearing continuously and prayerfully at the circumstances."

"You don't want me to marry money and have good clothes and all the other nice things, and travel and see the world, and all that?"

"No, by Jove! I want you to marry me."

Her laugh was just a funny little gurgle.

"Bluebeard!" she said, just like that. "And you haven't even killed Miss Randle yet! Thank you, ever so much; but I don't want to be one of several. Besides, you haven't any money."

Talk of impossibilities and impossible situations! What could a man say, or hope to say, to such a girl as that!

"Did you come over here just to torment me?" I rasped.

"Woof!" she shivered, "here comes the bear again!" and then, right smack out of a clear sky: "Kiss me—just 'forenoon," I admitted.

"Well, isn't that the way you've been acting?"

"Haven't I some little cause?"

"Maybe, of course, I'm willing to make some allowances. It does seem to me that you're a little muddle-headed."

"I—I think I have found out what I wanted to. Goodbye!" And then, after I thought she was clean gone, she turned back to say, airily: "Oh, yes; I had almost forgotten what I came over here to tell you. You mustn't sell the Cinnabar, Stannie; not for any price that anybody might offer you. Goodbye, again."

Can you beat it? When the good Lord made women He doubtless had many patterns; but I do believe the mold was broken and thrown away after this Jeanie girl had been fashioned. For a solid hour or more I sat on that slab bench at the shaft-house door in a sort of bewildered daze, wondering if I had been asleep and dreaming, or if the bedazzling thing had really happened.

At breakfast the next morning everything passed off as usual and for anything that Jeanie said or looked there needn't have been any bench beside the shaft-house door and the dream theory I had been playing with might have been the sober fact. An hour later, after I had gone across to the mine, Bullerton came over to dig me out, as before.

"Forty thousand this morning," he announced as chipper as an English sparrow over an unexpected heap of street sweepings. "Say, Broughton, can you afford to let your capital shrink at the rate of ten thousand dollars a day? If you should ask me, I should say not."

"You never miss what you haven't," I shot back. "There are no takers on the floor this morning."

"Slight-o; it'll be thirty thousand tomorrow, you must remember. At that rate you'll be owing me quite a chunk of money by this time next week. That's about all I have to say—excepting one more little thing: No more chummy little tete-a-tetes in the starlight, old man, or I shall be obliged to put the gad to you; the railroad gad, you know."

It made me so boiling hot to have him admit, thus baldly, that he had been spying upon Jeanie and me the previous evening that I could scarcely see straight.

"That will be about enough!" I tarked. "I told you the other day that there were limits, and you've walked up and looked over the edge two or three times. You may think you have as many lives as a cat, but I doubt it!"

He laughed and threw back the lapel of his coat to show me a regulation six-gun slung by a shoulder strap under his left arm.

"You pulled a hammer on me yesterday," he said, letting the laugh lapse into a grin that showed his fine mouthful of teeth, "and you probably didn't know that you would have been a dead man before you could swing it. Oh, yes; I could do it, and any coroner's jury in the Red Desert would acquit me; dangerous lunatic—self-defense, you know. That's a word to the wise, and it ought to be sufficient. But I have a better life-insurance policy than any that the six-gun could write me: I'm in love with Jeanie Twombly—in spite of that girl back East; and because you are, you are not going to make her a widow before the fact. You're not selling your mine for forty thousand—cold cash—this morning?"

"Not this morning or any other morning."

"Good. I can afford to stick around here a few days longer, I guess—at the rate of ten thousand dollars a day. So long." And he picked his way out of the clutter of the shop and went across to the cabin—and Jeanie.

Later, along in this same day, while I was standing at the shaft mouth and staring down at the water that was keeping me out of my heritage, Daddy Hiram came up.

"Still a puzzlin' over it, Stannie?" he asked, in the sympathetic tone that he always used when he spoke of the Great Disappointment.

"There's nothing to it, Daddy," I gloomed. "Bullerton has me by the neck, and he knows it."

He tiptoed to the door and peeped out.

"You've heard 'em say 'at curiosity killed a cat," he said, out of the corner of his mouth; "well, the cat's a-stannin'. Skip out of that other door, Stannie, and hit for the timber. I'll ketch up with you in a little spell."

I didn't know exactly what he was driving at until after I got clear of the mine buildings and was climbing the slope of the mountain above. Then I looked back and saw Bullerton sauntering across the dump head. He was evidently bent on another little job of spying; either that, or else he didn't want Daddy and me to get together by ourselves.

Under cover of the forest I sat down and waited; and in a short time Daddy joined me, making an excuse for the dodge-away that didn't mean anything at all.

"I got a claim over yonder in the right-hand gulch—the one 'at I was workin' when your gran'paw came along," he said. "Thought maybe you'd like to nog over with me and take a look at her."

Of course, I said I'd be delighted; so we made a detour around the Cinnabar, keeping out of sight from the cabin and shaft-house, and pushing on around the western slope for maybe half a mile until we came to the gulch in which the abandoned claim lay.

Working entirely alone, Daddy had driven a tunnel possibly a hundred feet deep straight into the solid rock of the mountain side, following the thin vein and hoping that it would wind into a "pay-streak." After he had led me a few yards into the tunnel, he broke me to a seat on a pile of broken rock, and took one himself with his back against the opposite wall.

"I'm gettin' just naturally so I hate a gosh-dummed crowd," he remarked, switching suddenly from his talk of the abandoned claim. "Feel sometimes as if I'd like to swap skins with a con-dummed gopher and duck plumb into a hole."

"Well," said I, grinning at him, "you've ducked, for once in a way, and so have I. What about it?"

"Charles Bullerton," he spat out, without further preface. "That slick-tongued word artist sure gets onto my nerves. What-all's he tryin' to do to you, anyway, Stannie?"

I didn't see any reason why he shouldn't know, so I told him all of it, from start to finish, offers, bully-ings, and threats, but, of course, nothing about the Jeanie factor.

"Great Moses!" he ejaculated, at the end of the sorry tale. "Why, gosh-to-Methusalem!—it's a hold-up! Do you reckon he kin unwater the Cinnabar?"

"Surest thing in the world. So

He waved Me to a Seat, on a Pile of Broken Rock.

could you or I, if we had the money to drive a long drainage tunnel from the lower slope."

The old man smoked along in thoughtful silence for a few minutes. Then he said:

"'Bout that there tunnel job; something like two hundred thousand, wa finger that'd cost, with no bad luck, didn't we, Stannie?"

"That was the figure."

"And, first off, Charles Bullerton was willin' to give you fifty thousand for your rights—though now you say he's shaved it down to forty. That'd mean an investment of at least two hundred and fifty thousand; all a-gogh out and nothin' a-comin' in. Let's see where that fetchin' us to. I don't know what your gran'paw paid for the mine, but it was less'n half a million, and I reckon he paid ever' dollar it was worth, don't you?"

"Doubtless he did," I admitted.

"So there's where we land," he went on speculatively. "Two hundred and fifty thousand raked onto half a million gives her a capital of three-quarters of a million sunk in her, first and last. Question is: Is she worth it?"

I was beginning to get his idea at last. He was wondering if a mine that had once sold at a top-notch price of half a million could stand the investment of a quarter of a million additional and still hope to be a paying proposition.

"You mean that Bullerton is figuring upon spending a quarter of a million more on it?" I queried.

"Nope; I reckon I can't. There's too nigger in the woodpile, somewhere, Stannie, as sure 's you're born."

"Bullerton has stolen my deed to the Cinnabar."

CHARACTER IS NOT EASILY READ

Idea of the Contrary, Long Held, Have Been Disapproved by Painstaking Studies.

Even one of the most plausible statements, namely, that a high forehead is a sign of intelligence, has been definitely disproved by the painstaking studies of Karl Pearson. He demonstrated experimentally that the color of the hair, or its straightness or curliness, shows one's intelligence better than does a high forehead, although these are not offered either as good indices. In other words, there has been found no definite relationship between any single peculiarity of the shape of the head and any trait of character. Henry Foster Adams writes in Scribner's.

For many years an Italian criminologist, Lombroso, made a study of criminal structural peculiarities and their relationship to crime. He found well-marked tendencies for criminals to possess certain stigmata or signs, but unfortunately the signs of the criminal were found to be widely prevalent among those whose names had never been upon police blotters. It was his pet scheme to have all individuals who were marked by a peculiar sign watched by his detectives, thus preventing crime instead of merely punishing it after it had been committed. It was entirely impracticable, for the characteristic sign of a murderer was found in altogether too many tender-hearted individuals to make the scheme at all feasible.

All systems of similar nature, in which relationship has been sought between traits of character and peculiarity of the structure, have met about the same fate.

Yale's Stone Bulldogs. Four bulldogs in stone represent student life at Yale. The bulldog has been Old Eli's mascot for 101 these many years. One of the dogs, with a wrinkled brow, wears spectacles. He is the student. Another bulldog, brown not so much wrinkled, wears a football player's helmet, a nose-piece with its end gripped in his teeth. He is the hero of the gridiron. Another bulldog wears a soldier's campaign hat, depicting what Yale men have done in the various wars. Still another bulldog has a cap and gown, representing the completion of the college course. Of all the carvings found, these are the four most interesting, although there are faces representing Dr. Huxley, and a few of his predecessors.

Costs Money to Keep Mines Dry. One of the big expenses of a coal mine is the continual pumping of water to keep it dry. In the average anthracite mine, 18 tons of water are hoisted from the mine for every ton of coal mined, and in some mines it runs up to 27 tons.

The bank wrecker may be hailed out, but the bank usually sinks.

South Bend, Ind.—"For some time I suffered from an organic trouble, with pains in my side, backache, and bearing pains. Through this I became so nervous and weak that I could not do anything. I was a miserable wreck, got so thin I only weighed ninety pounds. No medicine seemed to give me relief until I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After I had taken a few doses of this medicine I knew I had at last found something that was going to help me. I felt so much better. INCOME TAX FACTS.

To avoid penalty, income-tax returns must be in the hands of collectors of internal revenue on or before midnight, March 15, 1922.

Every taxable return must be accompanied by a payment of at least one-fourth of the total tax due. Extensions of time for filing returns are allowed only in exceptional cases, illness, absence, etc. Applications for extensions under these circumstances should be addressed to the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives. No extension beyond thirty days can be granted by a collector. Requests for further extensions must be addressed to the commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington, D. C.

For failure to make a return on time the penalty is a fine of not more than $1,000, plus 25 per cent of the tax due.

For failure to pay tax when due or for understatement of the tax through negligence there is a penalty of 5 per cent of the tax, plus interest at 1 per cent a month until paid. For making a false or fraudulent return the penalty is a fine of not more than $10,000 or not exceeding one year's imprisonment, or both, together with the cost of prosecution and an additional assessment of 50 per cent of the amount of tax paid.

THE PNEUMONIA MONTH.

March is typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ laden mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. Children take it willingly.

FARM BUREAU NOTES.

have to ship, but the corn of calves or brood sows, or raise them from bulk of quality.

Boy Beans.

Are going with a rush. I had to write and tell the people down there that I would take their whole 40 bushel lot, which I am doing, not at all in the sense of a dealer, but in an educational sense, to get farmers started with this valuable legume which makes splendid hay the same year seed is planted.

Please read the bulletin about soy beans, that I mailed each of you. Glad to have you call at the office and see photographs of soy beans raised in this county last year.

Keep right on trying to get meadows of clover and alfalfa; but, while these are growing, plant lots of soy beans for this year's use. Soy beans test fully as high in protein as alfalfa. Protein is one of the chief food elements in making milk. It is impossible for a cow to make up for a lack of protein feed through extra large amounts of feeds that do not contain much protein, like marsh hay, corn stalks, timothy, wheat, oats, rye, buckwheat straw.

Become interested in soy beans.

Your Grass Seed.

The man who puts off buying his clover seed is headed for trouble. There is just about one quarter as much good clover seed in Michigan as the state uses.

It is none of my business where you buy your seed.

As your county agent who has at heart the best interests of every farmer, I earnestly urge you to buy at once. Don't look for cheap seed. You cannot get something for nothing.

You should have heard what the Professor of Farm Crops at our Agricultural College said, when I was down there last month, about firm-selling cheap, inferior clover seed. He called some of them by name, too. Don't ever buy any seed of anyone at any price, if the tag on the bag does not show the purity, percentage of germination, percentage of weed seeds, and if the seller does not tell where the seed was grown.

Makes a Big Difference.

Where seed was grown makes a very big difference to us in this county of severe winters. If you would give me Utah alfalfa or Turkistan alfalfa, I would not waste my time or my land on it. We need a certified Grimm alfalfa that lived through the severe winters of North Dakota and Idaho.

Wouldn't Take As Gift.

I would not take as a gift the red clover seed grown in France and Italy sometimes spoken of as Mediterranean seed. Such seed is a genuine red clover, all right; but, it grew in countries far warmer than Crawford County. The Agricultural College of both Virginia and Indiana tried it out, and both pronounced it unfit for even those states which are far south of us.

Yet, nearly 14 million pounds of the stuff was imported last spring and mixed with regular clover seed.

With us, it starts to grow all right and the farmer who bought it says: "Country agent needn't bother so much. This seed is all right. I guess I know where to buy," the latter with a wise and knowing look.

The next spring it isn't there. It winter killed.

The Professor of Farm Crops said that everyone but 7 per cent of the seed houses had broken their promise not to import such seed.

The State Farm Bureau Seed department never talks about how cheap it can sell seed. It tells where ever drop of its seed grew, and guarantees its purity and germination on your money back.

How many others have been doing so?

Spring Just Round the Corner.

Though there is lots of snow yet we know that Spring is not far away. There is none too much time to make preparations for her coming.

What Shall We Do?

Let's order the wire fencing, seed harness, tools, everything we need and be ready.

Test the seed corn in the testing box. Test, don't guess. The field is a poor place to test seed corn. Engage the seed oats. There were not many oats in this county last year really fit for seed.

No one but a poor stick will put off repairs of plows, drags, harness, etc., until he must waste a nice spring day from work to get it fixed.

Yes, Let's Have Some Beauty, Too.

Why not plan a larger, better garden than ever; fenced to keep stock and chickens out; long rows to be cultivated with a horse?

A good garden is the most valuable acre of the farm.

Flowers! Well chosen, well placed, who doesn't love them?

Brother, let's spend a few cents for a few flower seeds of kinds our wives or daughters have expressed a preference for, or we have admired elsewhere.

Let's take the time to help fertilize and prepare the ground for them and to protect them from stock. The little time, the pitifully little time needed, we will never miss if we are good planners.

No, brother, excuse me, you can't make me believe that it's fussing with flowers a few evenings that puts you behind with your work. Something else put you behind; but, we won't talk about that now.

Neighbors will like the looks of the place better for some bright well placed flowers. Put them along the walks and drives; around foundations; along fences; in corners. Having started them, give them the care to make them grow.

People passing will admire your place. You will think more of the place.

Let's rake the front yard, and the back yard, and the barn yard. Now, don't giggle, or say anything cutting. Let's prune the orchard and burn the brush.

Let's clean up the fence rows along the road.

Let's look very good to see the old folks, from repairing the fence, left lying along the road year after year.

I admire the gumption of some young people for quitting and leaving the farm home where the father is old. But, the child has no blame to lay on stock, and things are kept looking so disgusting. He's got a lot of living in what he's got. He's got a lot of money in his pocket. Let's look up. Let's clean up.

Let's step up, and take the place in the county that a well-kept farm home entitles us to.

U. S. TREASURY LAUNCHES SAFE INVESTMENT CAMPAIGN.

William B. Bosworth, Government Savings Director for the Seventh Federal Reserve District, announces today the opening of a campaign to blot out the financial swindlers located in the five states of his district—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin. During the month of March 50,000 city and rural mail carriers will take the following message to their sixteen million patrons: "CONSULT YOUR BANKER OR POSTMASTER BEFORE YOU INVEST."

Sixteen million dollars worth of the Government's new Treasury Savings certificates have been distributed among the five thousand post offices in the district and each postmaster is responsible for the campaign in his community. Money invested in the new certificates increases twenty-five per cent in five years and will be returned to the investor at any time within the five years upon demand to the Treasury Department. Registration insures the investor against any form of loss. Postmasters are authorized to receive investments as small as $20 and as large as $4,000 from any individual.

THE WORLD SHRINKING.

Vot Physically, but Through Modern Means of Communication.

The far places of a generation ago have become the neighboring areas of today. Distance in thousands or hundreds of miles has given way to hours of time. The "prairie schooner," the pony express and sailing vessel have succumbed to the magnificent transcontinental limited, the wireless telegraph and telephone and the palatial ocean liner and airplane. These modern modes of travel and methods of communication have brought the far places near and increased interest in peoples, countries and living conditions which but a few years ago occupied the imagination as almost of another world.

With the facility of communication between all parts of the world, there has come a growing demand for information concerning the out-of-the-way places and the changing face of the world, the habits of peoples, their nearer and the topographical descriptions of countries made accessible. To help supply this information the Avalanche contains weekly an article prepared by the National Geographic Society, which, illustrated, is an entertaining and instructive feature of the paper and one which should secure a large reading among the progressive inclined, and especially among the school children.

Clean cotton wiping rags wanted at the Avalanche office. 5c per lb. paid for them.

Some men undertake to live by their wits, but they break for want of capital.—Benjamin Franklin.

ANNUAL TAX SALE FOR CRAWFORD COUNTY.

Starting with issue of March 9 an ending with issue of April 6 the list of lands in Crawford county to be sold for non-payment of taxes will be published in the Avalanche.

The sale of such lands will take place at the office of County Treasurer, Court house, Grayling, Michigan, the first Tuesday in May, 1922. All residents of Crawford county should compare their tax receipt with the published lists to ascertain whether or not their lands are advertised for sale.

PROBATE NOTICE.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts upon the blood on the mucous surface of the system. We will give you Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
